A SESSION TO DE-'STRESS' YOUR EXAM STRESS

Recently, the JGU student community came together for "Talk it Out", a mental health awareness event, organized by the Rotaract Club of JGU. Aimed at creating a safe and supportive space, the event provided attendees with strategies to manage stress, connect with peers and faculty, and explore mental health resources. The event was divided into two engaging parts. The first part involved a chit exchange activity, where participants anonymously shared good affirmations, encouraging messages, or even difficult memories. This activity helped foster a sense of connection and support among attendees. The second part was a blindfolded session, moderated to allow individuals to anonymously share their experiences. This ensured privacy and encouraged open and heartfelt expression

"Talk It Out" provided students with valuable strategies to manage stress and explore mental health resources without the fear of being judged. The event successfully created an inclusive and empathetic atmosphere, helping participants feel heard, understood, and uplifted.

JGU Music Society brings together band members with majestic Band Roulette

The event showcased incredible creativity, with each band presenting melodies in their own style and talent

The JGU Music Society hosted Band Roulette, bringing together musicians and vocalists from within the Music Society. Participants signed up individually and were randomly assigned to bands, creating unique groups with just a few days to rehearse and prepare their performances. The event showcased incredible creativity, with each band presenting their own style and energy. From heartfelt melodies to high-energy performances, the evening was a celebration of music, collaboration, and talent.
