

O.P. Jindal Global University
A Private University Promoting Public Service
NAAC Accreditation - 'A' Grade

Jindal School of Government and Public Policy
India's First Public Policy School

From Harvard Economics 10 Students' Walk-Out to Manchester Students' publication
The Econocracy: The Perils of Leaving Economics to Experts

An Open Discussion

Led by

PROFESSOR STEPHEN MARKS

Dept. of Global Health and Population Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

Professor Stephen P. Marks is the François-Xavier Bagnoud Professor of Health and Human Rights and Director of the Program on Human Rights in Development at the Harvard School of Public Health. He is also the Senior Fellow at Harvard's University Committee on Human Rights Studies. He holds academic degrees from Stanford University and the Universities of Paris, Besançon, Nice, Strasbourg and the University of Damascus. He served in the United Nations system for 12 years, first at UNESCO Headquarters in Paris and then in peacekeeping operations in Cambodia and the Western Sahara. The emphasis of Stephen Marks's work is on the interface of health and human rights, drawing on the disciplines of international law, international politics, international organizations, and international economics. Professor Marks's recent research has focused on integrating human rights into sustainable human development; biotechnology and human rights; impunity for mass atrocities; terrorism and human rights; cultural rights; tobacco control; and human rights education. He has published recent books, articles or book chapters in each of these areas. He recently co-edited a book on Development as a Human Right: Legal, Political and Economic Dimensions and a reader on Perspectives on Health and Human Rights, as well as editing Health and Human Rights: Basic International Documents, now in its second edition. Professor Marks is currently collaborating with Prof. Mahal on a book on economic and human rights approaches to poverty prevention and reduction, based on a research project for UNICEF, and is overseeing research on the assessment of development partnership from the perspective of the right to development, as part of his work for the United Nations Human Rights Council. Among the research topics within that framework are access to affordable drugs in developing countries (Target 17 of the MDGs) and human rights aspects of international trade. He directs Harvard Series on Health and Human Rights at Harvard University Press and co-directs the annual intensive summer course on health and human rights. In his capacity as Senior Fellow at the University Committee on Human Rights Studies, he has developed a strategy for human rights learning in Harvard College in collaboration with the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and is teaching two courses in the college as part of the expanded human rights curriculum.

Date: Wednesday, 8 March, 2017

Time: 2:00 pm – 3:30 pm

Venue: T2, Global Conference Room
O.P. Jindal Global University, Sonipat